Global Energy Conference

European Energy Security after Fukushima and the Role of Azerbaijan

Friday, 20 May 2011
Steigenberger Frankfurter Hof

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen,

The letter E, in English the most often used letter of the alphabet, is currently more popular than ever. Terms like Energy, Energy saving, Energy Efficiency and renewable Energies rapidly are getting more widely used in everyday conversations as well as in professional debates.

Places like Osjorsk, Harrisburg, Chernobyl, and Fukushima mean for a growing number of people not only a geographic item. This list can easily be amended with further examples of incidents in nuclear power plants across the globe.

Today's topic affects our daily and vital interests. We are amidst a fundamental, some say epochal, re-orientation in the energy industry and energy policy. The Global Energy Conference aims to offer navigation to decision makers as well as to those affected by such decisions. It means to be instrumental in weighing arguments as well as pointing out alternatives.

I wish all delegates useful insights and feasible tools for problem-solving.
